

ComSys becomes LifeSize New Reseller in Gainesville, FL

Leading Gainesville technology reseller to offer high definition video communications products

AUSTIN, TEX., and GAINESVILLE, FL - June 9, 2009 - LifeSize Communications, the global leader in high definition video communications, today announced the signing of a new agreement with Communication Systems, Inc. (ComSys). Under the agreement, ComSys, a leading provider of technology solutions for integrating voice, data, surveillance and access control systems, will add LifeSize all-HD video communication systems to its extensive product portfolio.

"ComSys brings the expertise and the infrastructure necessary for LifeSize to grow our channel partner base in the North Central Florida market," said Adam Taylor, Executive VP, Worldwide Sales & Customer Services with LifeSize. "We realize the tremendous value our partners bring to LifeSize and we are absolutely committed to providing them with a fully encompassing channel program that supports their efforts and contributes to their ultimate success. We are looking forward to working with ComSys to bring our exciting technology to new customers, allowing them to do more while travelling less."

LifeSize's all-HD video product portfolio is now the industry's broadest and most affordable high definition product line, ranging from simple point-to-point video systems to highly customized, multi-display, multi-HD camera video systems. LifeSize products provide superior quality of experience, unique flexibility and unmatched price performance."

Donald Bugos, President, at ComSys said, "With innovative products like the powerful LifeSize Room 200 and the affordable LifeSize Express, ComSys can now offer our customers the absolute best price performance solutions available. ComSys' distribution network and dedicated communications division will help to grow LifeSize's market share substantially throughout North Central Florida."

ComSys has joined the LifeSize channel partner program and will market, sell and support LifeSize products in the region. ComSys was selected to be a part of the LifeSize channel partner program based on their extensive experience and knowledge of the video communications market, as well as their ability to provide exceptional customer service and support. All partners have access to a number of LifeSize programs and tools, including a secure partner portal for ordering products, accessing sales, support and marketing materials, receiving leads, and tracking orders and trouble tickets.
